

HAZEM AL AMAYREH

Career Readiness | Social Skills | Workplace Transition

Hazem Al Amayreh is a pharmacist by education and a talent management and learning and development leader by profession. A graduate of Jordan University of Science and Technology (JUST), he began his career as a medical representative in 2009, moved into first-line sales management, and went on to lead regional learning and talent initiatives in the pharmaceutical sector.

Hazem has delivered career development and social skills sessions for students at Yarmouk University, the University of Jordan, and JUST. His university work has reached more than 1,500 students. He helps learners connect their studies to workplace expectations through practical sessions on communication, professional presence, career readiness, growth mindset, and the transition from campus to employment.

He draws on experience developing more than 10,000 professionals and people managers across 15 countries. His guest sessions use discussion, real workplace examples, and interactive activities to help students recognize their strengths and practice skills they can use beyond the classroom.
